QUARTERLY COMMENTARY

Oakmark Select Fund

September 30, 2026

THIRD QUARTER 2026

- The Fund (Investor Class) outperformed the benchmark, the S&P 500 Index, for the quarter.
- At the sector level, information technology and health care were the largest contributors to performance, while consumer staples and real estate were the largest detractors from performance.
- Although a handful of large companies continue to dominate U.S. market returns, periods like these also have the potential to create attractive opportunities outside the market's most crowded areas. By remaining focused on well-managed businesses selling at discounts to our estimate of intrinsic value, we believe patient investors are well-positioned to benefit as the gap between price and value narrows over time.

TOP CONTRIBUTOR | DETRACTOR

Top contributor

Paycom was a contributor during the quarter. Shares of the U.S.-headquartered provider of payroll and workforce management software rose sharply after the company reported accelerating revenue growth, significant margin expansion, and stronger-than-expected profitability. The results reflected the benefits of recent cost-reduction initiatives, which drove substantial earnings and cash flow growth. Investors also responded favorably to Paycom's aggressive share repurchase program and management's indication that higher profitability levels can be sustained, supporting a higher assessment of the company's long-term earnings power.

Top detractor

Ally Financial was a detractor during the quarter. Shares of the U.S.-headquartered digital bank and leading auto lender declined despite reporting largely in-line results and continued improvements in lending margins and credit performance. Investors remained cautious about the pace of the recovery in consumer credit trends and the broader economic outlook, which weighed on sentiment toward the shares. We believe positive developments in ALLY's business mix and management team position the company well over the medium term.

PORTFOLIO ACTIVITY

New purchases

Meta Platforms is a U.S.-headquartered technology company whose Family of Apps (including Facebook, Instagram, and WhatsApp) reaches 3.6 billion daily active users. Growth and returns in Meta's core businesses remain exceptional but investors have grown concerned by the company's large investment in AI. We are confident that the company can monetize AI compute through a combination of core business improvement, new AI businesses and potentially 3rd party compute rental. We believe the Family of Apps business is already benefitting from improved recommendation and ad-matching systems. Meta is also off to a strong start with its new personal AI assistant, Muse. With shares trading near their lowest multiple outside the 2022 period, we invested at a meaningful discount to our estimate of intrinsic value.

Rocket Companies is a leading U.S. mortgage originator and servicer with a technology-driven platform spanning direct-to-consumer lending, partner channel mortgages, and adjacent businesses such as Rocket Money, Redfin, and personal loans. The company has consistently gained market share through its scale and low-cost operating model, and it still has a long runway for growth in a fragmented industry. We believe the market is underappreciating Rocket's earnings power in a normalized mortgage environment, particularly when industry volumes recover. Supported by strong execution, a founder-led culture, and resilient performance through the current downturn, Rocket offers an attractive risk-reward profile.

The S&P 500 Index is a float-adjusted, capitalization-weighted index of 500 U.S. large-capitalization stocks representing all major industries. It is a widely recognized index of broad, U.S. equity market performance. Returns reflect the reinvestment of dividends. This index is unmanaged and investors cannot invest directly in this index.

The Russell 1000® Value Index measures the performance of the large-cap value segment of the U.S. equity universe. It includes those Russell 1000® companies with lower price-to-book ratios and lower expected growth values. This index is unmanaged and investors cannot invest directly in this index.

Investing involves risk; principal loss is possible. There is no guarantee the Fund's investment objective will be achieved. Value stocks may fall out of favor with investors and underperform growth stocks during given periods. Because the Fund is non-diversified, the performance of each holding will have a greater impact on the Fund's total return, and may make the Fund's returns more volatile than a more diversified fund. Medium-sized companies' stocks tend to be more volatile than those of large companies and have underperformed the stocks of small and large companies during some periods. These and other risk considerations are described in detail in the Fund's prospectus.
